概要	This course is mainly concerned with some of the major issues in the world today, including the issues of education and gender, global warming, terrorism, poverty and hunger, refugee, as well as weapons and war. A central theme concerns the struggle for peace in a world that has experienced a great deal of human suffering and conflict. Topics have both historical and contemporary implications for students to rethink the international relations history and better understand the contemporary global world.
到達目標	This course aims to provide students with basic knowledge and perspectives about global studies, in an effort to cultivate the spirit of internationalism and global mind. The class is completely conducted in English based on the textbook. It attempts to help students to gain the ability and skills to understand historical and contemporary global issues in English, as well as think and discuss about these issues in English. It is also expected that students would further develop their interest reading about global issues through English literature and materials on their own in order to broaden their global perspectives.
